

Alaska Registry of Interpreters for the Deaf and
University of Alaska Anchorage
Present

Case Conferencing Forum

Monday, March 1, 2010

4:00pm – 6:00pm

This forum is a continuation of the case supervision session and Demand-Control Schema training that Robyn Dean and Robert Pollard presented in February 2010. This is a wonderful opportunity for interpreters to meet to discuss their work. In the past interpreters have gathered together informally to talk about their work for the purposes of improvement, problem solving and maintenance of ethical behavior. Often we have come away with less than wonderful results and no 'tools in our pocket' should the problem arise again. In this interactive forum, we will employ a practice profession approach to interpreting. Structured case presentation and peer analysis will show an important type of reflective learning opportunity that working professionals can use throughout their career. This process does not place analysis of the work in an abstracted hypothetical form, but in the tangible and practical experiences of our daily work.

Interpreter peers will present, supervise and discuss cases. Participants are encouraged to bring in their own cases for discussion under the guidance of an experienced supervisor. This training is open for all levels of interpreters and advanced ASL students.

LOCATION: University of Alaska, Anchorage
Beatrice McDonald Hall (BMH) 215
<http://www.uaa.alaska.edu/map/>

COST: None

CEUs: None

For more INFORMATION: ANNE DAWSON dawson@asdawson.com